My Learnings

What I learned this quarter	What actions have I taken/will take related to this learning
Data Accuracy and Maintenance	• Multiple Data Owners: Achieving accuracy in QR and ACV calculations re various stakeholders, including users generating new SKUs, the Deal Des processes, and the Customer Intelligence team owning renewal forecasts make sure everyone's automations work correctly. • Power Users Know Too Much: Some of our most knowledgeable users, li Desk, can navigate the CPQ system effectively, their complex workaroun amendments, can inadvertently create significant data issues downstrear generated by these workarounds may go unnoticed for an extended perio resemble legitimate data, making it challenging to identify and reverse the take hours or even weeks to do correctly. In contrast, less informed users straightforward steps, such as including ACV/QR percentages on new pro be corrected in just a few minutes. • Learning Maintenance is Important as Impact: Development needs to w power users so they do not have to resort to complex workarounds for an time. But our team also needs to make reporting even the smallest issues power users. Although there is merit to making sure our team priortizes hi some issues have high costs due to the problems our power users can cr doing maintenance tickets for our system (like Tech Debt). • Partial Solution: Support Reduction cases have already played a crucial r maintenance issues within our system. While they may not be as visible a they deserve greater recognition for their effectiveness in preventing hidd Reduction process has already improved this quarter, and we've had more health of our system than last quarter. I've learned to better appreciate th ongoing efforts to maintain the integrity of our complex system.
